Here is a select universe of individuals who are actively committed to improving their job prospects - and income - by furthering their education or enrolling in vocational training programs via distance learning and other methods.

They researched online career-building resources and studied to become electricians, plumbers, electronic specialists, TV/VCR repair technicians, telecommunications technicians, etc. Many of them researched a variety of online resources for career information and/or development.

These students can qualify for a wide range of tuition assistance, including zero-interest loans, Federal Student Aid, scholarships, and alternative loans.

Recommended for: distance learning, self-improvement, job-hunting, financial offers, recruitment, credit cards, self-employment opportunities, vocation and trade school recruitment, etc.
